GOLF RULERS IN SESSION. BOTH EAST AND WEST TO SHARE N THE YEAR'S CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Garden City to Hold the Amateur, Shinner cock Hills the Women's and Chicago the Open Event—Amounts Fixed to Be Paid Toward the Expenses and Officers Elected

East and West will share the honors of holding the golf championships this year, according to the votes of the delegates at the annual meeting of the U. S. G. A. last night at Dolmonico's. Garden City will have the amateur. Shin accock Hills the women's and the Chicago Golf Club the open championship. The choice of the dates will be announced later by the Executive Committee after consulting with the three clubs. It was the fifth annual meeting of the U. S. G. A., since the meeting to organize n 1895. The meeting was carried out in a deliberative manner that showed that the delegates feit the responsibility of representing the great army of golfers scattered throughout the country. The Myopia and Meadowbrook clubs were the only associate clubs not represented. The other associate clubs, each of which had two votes, were rep-

In calling the meeting to order President Thomas spoke in part as follows:

The season of 1849 has been especially noteworthy from the fact that for the first time we have an amateur champion who has learned the game and acquired his skill in it in this country.

The Executive Committee has given careful consideration to the question of limiting the entries to the chambionships, but no plan so far suggested has been so completely satisfactory, even if practical, that it might not work some injustice. In fact, it is doubtful if it is wise just yet for the National Association to adopt any arbitrary regulations limiting the entries to the championships. It would seem that further progress toward sectional organization should first be made, and that whatever arbitrary legislation may late be necessary, should be worked out on the line of the limitations placed upon the entries by the subordinate associations themselves. The Executive Committee has given careful entries by the subordinate associations themselves.

There has fortunately been an increase in sectional associations, which, in their own way, as a result of such organization are helping indirectly to reduce the number of entries, and it now seems, as before suggested, that by the increase of these, and of State leagues, the most practical and most satisfactory solution of the difficulty will be found. No matter what action in regard to the limitation of entries it may ultimately be desirable to adopt the National Association, must, of necessity, always rely upon the good sense and judgment of the body of our players, who should see to it, as far as such a thing is possible, that only the very best players, who have proven to be such by some competitive tests in their own sections, should be permitted to represent them or to enter the larger championships.

"It is most gratilying to make reference to outside of a few histances, the tendency of giving prizes of considerable intrinsic value in golf competitions for amateurs, seems to have been checked. Though the practice is not especially prevalent, it still exists to a certain extent, but it may become even less frequent (and I cannot say the with too great emphasis), as long as the members of the association use their influence to promote this end, and to discourage in any manner which seems to them ms to them proper, any amateur competition where such prizes are offered, or, in fact, competitions for amateurs in which more indefinite and in-direct inducements may be offered, which tends the present enviable position of the sport.

"It does not seem to me advisable for the "It does not seem to me advisable for the association to attempt to regulate the conduct of each club belonging to it by some hard and fast restrictions as to prizes, as it is a matter that can be better dealt with by the individual clubs. In this connection it may be as well to state right here that, as a general principle, it seems to me the best interests of the National Association are promoted by non-interference with the management or the affairs of the individual clubs by unnecessary legislation, except upon matters which we are some affect most vitally the general interests of the association and the welfare of the sport, and that even on matters which of necessity require our interference by special legislation, as well as uron those which do not, we must chiefly rely for the best results upon the good sense and judgment of our members."

members.

In closing President Thomas expressed the indehtedness of the U.S. G. A. to the Onwentsia, Philadelphia Country, Baltimore Country and Morris County clubs for their care of the association's interests in events at their links, and he also stated the regrets of the Executive Committee at the retirement from adder of H. mmittee at the retirement from office of H. Laurence Curtis, representing Messrs. MacDonald and Coates as his associates on the committee to interpret the new St. Andrewa rules, then presented a scaled report. He said that the new code so nearly rosembled the present U. S. G. A. playing code that the committee had had to make but few interpretations and he suggested that the report that was presented should at once be put into type for general distribution and criticism before being printed in the year book.
Mr. Curtis's suggestion was voted on favorably and the report was accepted without being

In accordance with a suggestion made by President Thomas in his opening speech, that it would be wise to fix a definite sum to be awarded by the U. S. G. A. in the future to help defray the expenses of each club holding a championship event. W. M. McCawley moved that hereafter the club holding the amateur championship should receive a sum not in excess of $1,500; the club holding the women's championship not more than $1,000, and the club holding the open championship not more than $750.

"Who knows how much a club should spend on a championship?" exclaimed Horace Russell, as an informal remark.

W. A. Flagg, as an amendment to Mr. McCawley's motion, named $500 as the amount to be paid toward the open championship expenses. John Reid seconded the motion as amended and it was unanimously carried. On motion of Mr. Atterbury the selection of the championship dates was left to the Executive Committee, and on the motion of Mr. Curtis the meeting adjourned.

St. AUGUSTINE, Feb. 28.-In the preliminary St. Augustine, Feb. 28.—In the preliminary round of the handleap tournament played on the links of the St. Augustine Golf Club, R. C. Watson, Jr., of New York who was paired with Taylor, beat his opponent and broke all previous records of the links by making the nine holes in 34. J. C. Diekson formerly held the amateur record with 35 and Findiay held the professional record with 35. Watson's work was remarkably accurate, and he payed steadily and in good form. E. A. Sumner beat Hopkins by default. Dulles beat Harkness by default, and McLain beat Sudlow by default. The semi-finals for the handsome Warden cup will be played off to-morrow morning when Sumner will meet McLain, and Dulles will meet Watson. The finals will be played on Thursday afternoon next. noon next.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28.—Harry Vardon leaves to-night for Pinehurst, N. C., where he will play an exhibition match on March 5. After that matches are scheduled for Augusta, Ga., and Aiken, S. C. George Low left for Jackson-ville last night, where he will take the boat for New York on Friday morning. Owing to showers and high winds there was no golf on the links here to-day.

W. E. Edge, Secretary of the Atlantic City Country Club, said yesterday that the open tournament this spring would be held on April 4, 5, 6 and 7. A feature of the latter day would be a match between Harry Vardon and the best ball of two amateurs, one of whom would be Findlay S. Douglas, the ex-amateur champion.

Sad Sam Wins the Lexington Selling Stakes at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 28.- The Lexington sellng stakes for two-year-olds at four furlongs and worth $1,000 to the winner was the feature of to-day's card. The crowd out was of holiday | tries close proportions, the city as yet being full of strangers. Sad Sam, a double stake winner in two-year-old events, was made an 11 to 5 favorite with Adnoor second choice. The Morris pair Plead and Choice found many supporters at fours. In the first breakaway Sempire got away from his jockey and ran away seven furiongs at top speed. Almon got away first and led to the stretch, when Choice collared him. The latter looked to be winning easy when Sad Sam came with a rush and under the whip won by a head. Plead was third. Sad Sam's race to-day stamps him the best two-year-old shown hereabouts. In the steeplechase event, Bleakmore, an outsider in the betting, was running easily five lengths in front when he left the course and was pulled up. Jack Hayes then assumed command and won as he pleased. Summaries:

The fourth game of the series of six games between Lipschuetz and Richardson was contested at the Manhattan Chess Club yesterday, when the former opened the partie with the Vienna attack, combining it with a King's lamebetto. With 7. P-K R 4 black began an attack and offered the sacrifice of a knight. Lipschuetz studied a long time and finally took the offered piece, thereby subjecting himself to a strong attack. On black blaying very strongly indeed, white had a most difficult task in keeping his position intact. He had finally to give up the queen for a rook, and after twenty-seven moves the game. The score now stands: Lipschuetz, 1: Richardson, 1: drawn, 2. The game follows:

The President appointed Messrs, Heebner, Chaunevan't McCawley as a committee to addit Mr. Fowler's report. The choice of the links for the championships was then brought up. On the motion of C. B. Macdonald, the amateur event was awarded to the Garden City Golf Club without a dissenting vote. Mr. Atterbury then moved that the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club without a dissenting vote. Mr. Atterbury then moved that the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club western should go to the Baltusrol Golf Club. He made the condition that the event, to have the course in the best condition, should be held in the fall. Mr. Viterbury capped this statement by saving that his club was ready to hold the event on any date asked, whether late or early. This remark made an impression and in the subsequent vote Shinnecock Hills won.

Two Western clubs appeared as condidates for the open championship, Mr. Mactonald speaking in favor of the Chicago Golf Cub and E. C. Potter volcing the request of the Middothian Club, also near Chicago, which he said possessed a course with a playing length of 6.380 yards, a splendid clubhouse, and, as a further reason, he said that it was the home club of Willio Smith the present open champion, John Reid, who was present as a member of the Executive Committee, then submitted the request of St. Andrews for the event. A SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE.

Arrangements Complete for the Annual

Madison Square Garden has been transformed into a veritable forest as a setting for the sixth annual sportsmen's show, which begins this evening. Thousands of pine, fir and balsam trees have been placed on the floor and galleries, while the realistic effect is heightened by a large artificial lake at the Fourth avenue end of the building, with an immense backwater depicted on the canvas connects with a dian camp and finally empties into the lake. Sportsmen of every description have bee catered to in the exhibits. Fine specimens of moose, elk and caribou are included among the occupants of the big-game parks, while the wilder animals are represented by the wolf, mountain lion, lynx, wildeat, black, grizzly and silver-tip bears, and many other creatures whose habits and appearance are unknown to silver-tip bears, and many other creatures whose habits and appearance are unknown to the majority of game hunters.

Upon the main floor stand the tanks containing some of the finest specimens of game fish that the New York Fish Commissioners can furnish, while a hatchery near by will show the method of breeding them adopted by the United States Fish Commission. In the spaces surrounding the amphitheatre are arranged the exhibits representative of the various big-game sections of the country, including the Adirondacks, New York State, Florida, Colorado and Newfoundland, while choice specimens of all the game birds known to America are placed in roomy coops of wire mesh adjoining the lake.

The exhibit of Indian goods is much larger than in previous years and includes the product of any formula tribuses the Arabe mesh adjoining the lake.

The exhibit of Indian goods is much larger than in previous years and includes the product of such famous tribes as the Apache, Arapahoe. Assinneboine. Blackfeet, Cherokee. Cheyenne, Choctaw and Crow.

From a competitive standpoint the show promises to come fully up to the high standard established last year. The aquatic events to night include a 50-yard swimming race, open to pupils in schools affiliated with the New York or Long Island Interscholastic A. A., and the trial bouts in a water polo contest open to teams of recognized boat clubs. On following evenings the Metropolitan Association and A. A. U. swimming championshirs will be held at different distances. The water polo championship will bring together the New York A. C. and Knickerbocker A. C., the two best teams in the country, while the best swimmers of the leading colleges will take part in the events open to American colleges and universities.

On the roof of the Garden some of our best trap shots will compete for the National Sportsmen's Association championships, at inanimate targets thrown from the magautrap, while in the basement of the Garden rifle and revolver matches will take place every day.

The show will continue until Saturday night. March 17, the doors opening after today at 10 A. M. and remaining open until 11 P. M.

of which Harry Mullenhauer is chairman, has succeeded in arranging a billiard tournament for the championship of Greater New York. It will be held at the Hanover Club, under the auspices of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, beginning on March 12, and lasting one week, one game being played each night. There are four entries: J. Byron Stark, Frank A. Keeney, Ferdinand Pogzenburg and Arthur Townsend, all well-known in Metropolitan billiard circles. Stark has won num-rous local tournaments and finished first in the class B championship of the A. A. U. a year ago. He did not compete in the last class B affair, having with Keeney, Poggenburg, Townsend and others decided to break away from the A. A. U. Poggenburg won the Intercity and Interclub tourney last December, defeating Keeney, who was victorious in the second section of that affair. The games will be 300 points at 14-inch balk-line billiards, Handsome prizes have been provided by the members of the Hanover Club, and prominent amateurs will referee the matches. It will be an invitation affair for club men, and cards of admission to see the game may be had by applying to the Hanover Club. and lasting one week, one game being played

One of the best exhibitions of play in an interscholastic hockey match this season about New York was shown last night at the Clermont Avenue Rink in Brooklyn, where the Adelphi Academy team of Brooklyn crossed sticks with the St. Francis Xavier seven of this city. In the first period of piay the St. Francis Xavier lads put the rubber through the goal posts of their opponents three times. Adelphi was shut out in this half.

Then the Brooklyn boys got right down to hockey, and piaving all around the Manhattan students, delighted the big crowd present by tallying three goals in succession, shutting out their opponents. The whistle blew just here and the game was a tie. It was dedied to play off, and in the extra five minutes allotted to the teams, after some exciting play, Hyde tallied the winning goal amid wild cheers, leaving the final tady of the match. IN THE BASEBALL WORLD. TWO KINDS OF SYNDICATES AS THEY EXIST IN THE LEAGUE. Difference Between the Brooklyn-Balti-more Partnership and the Freedman-Brush-Soden Combination-Haulon and Von der Horst Want Fair Treatment.

The insincers cry against so-called "syndicate ball," emanating from Freedman, Brush and ground representing the Yosemite Valley. The Soden, all of the New York club, has brought to light various facts of which the public has trickling stream, that winds through the In- hitherto been in ignorance. It has developed that there are two kinds of "syndicate ball" - successful and unsuccessful. The first baseball syndicate was formed in 1890, when the New York League club, owned by John B. Day, was driven to the wall by the New York Brotherhood club. Day made a game fight, dropped every dollar he had invested in the game, and then, instead of going over to the enemy in return for a handsome bonus, he turned to his fellow magnates in the National League. John T. Brush at that time wned the Indianapolis franchise, which he still bangs on to, although that city is in the American League. Brush, when Day was deserted by his players, had sold to the New York man all of his Indianapolis players for $60,000 in round numbers. Day paid Brush partly in cash, also with some stock and several notes. When Day turned to his League partners it was a case of put up the cash or shut up the Polo Grounds. To his assistance came Soden of Boston, Spalding of Chicago, Reach of Philadelphia Abeli of Brooklyn and Brush of Cincinnati, who jointly subscribed about $50,000 and took stock in the club as collateral. Thus the New York club was made the first real syndicate in baseball, and its strength was increased when it was reorganized with the Brotherhood backers, Talcott. McAlpin, Van Cott, Robinson and others as stockholders.

When Freedman got into the game in 1895 the Brotherhood men retired by purchase, and so did Reach. Some of Spalding's stock was also unloaded, but Brush, Soden and Abell held on to every shareth y possessed. Freedman and Soden made a combination immediately, so that they controlled the affairs of the club with an iron grip. Brush and Abell together with the other minority stockholders could do nothing, but as Brush was the real leader in the League, the Freedman Soden combine did no harm beyond making it possible for Freedman to draw $10,000 annually for mismanaging the New Yorks and killing the game. But with the flop of Brush last fall, and the formation of the Freedman-Brush-Soden symbicate, real evils cropped up. It was to their interest to have big gate receipts at the Polo Grounds, especially as the New York club is at present well steeped in financial distress. So they put their heads together and decided to proceeding, for, as a rule, the tournaments do | reduce the circuit to eight clubs, by force, if neces-With the game practically dead here when the poor playing by the New Yorks and Brooklyns, both badly handled, the League men were in dire straits. Freedman had declared that he would keep on killing the game and it looked like a crash all around. The Leaguers were bewildered when suddenly the suggestion was made that a winning club in Brooklyn would offset Freedman's crusade. The idea was promptly approved of by Brush who urged Abell and Von der Horst, of Brooklyn and Baltimore respect Von der Horst, of Brooklyn and Baltimore respectively, to "get together." As a result the combination was made, the Brooklyns won the championship and interest in the game was kept up when otherwise it would have been driven permanently into the ground. The Brooklyns drew big crowds on the road and were also liberally patronized at Washington Park considering the efforts of the New York club president to keep patrons away from the gates of every League park in the country. nan' While the Brooklyn-Baltimore syndicate at showed that he did not relish the presence of the new Brooklyns in the local field from the start. His New York team deliberately forfeited a game to the Brooklyns at the Polo-Grounds when 3,000 persons were present and through the manipulation of Soden and Brush, Freedman not only escaped a fine, but the Brooklyn club received absolutely no share of the receipts. This was the first effective shot and the second came when the New York club made a howl over the purchase of Wrigley by Brooklyn from the Syracuse club. Contrary to the rules and regulations, the Brooklyn club was censured and fined $500 for the transaction, although Wrigley still belongs to Brooklyn and after the above ruling had been made the Freedman Brush-Soden syndicate had the national agreement changed to coincide with what they and after the above ruling had been made the Preedman Brush-Soden syndicate had the national agreement changed to coincide with what they knew had been an illegal ruling. The third shot was the transfer of Pitcher Meekin from Freedman to Soden with the expressed purpose of helping the Bostons beat out the Brooklyns. Meekin was unsuccessful in his mission and now Soden wants to hand him back. Then came the fourth and most important shot, the cry of 'Down with syndicate ball'.

"I will not strengthen the New Yorks until the circuit has been reduced to eight clubs and syndicate ball has been wiped out" was the order from Freedman to the assembled magnates at the Democratic Club last December. Who were the first ones to take thy matter in hand? Brush and Soden of the New York club. The plan was to drive both Brooklyn and Baltimore out if possible, grab the players and go ahead with a new circuit, but it wouldn't work. So the guns were turned toward Baltimore and the cannonade is still going on. It is simply a fight between a successful money making syndicate on one side and a syndicate of jealous individuals on the other. Until the latter syndicate is abolished either by the retirement of Brush and Soden or the absolute withdrawal of Freedman, the public will not place any faith in the rear against the methods and inventions of such well known syndismen. as Abell and Van der Horst, who control 80 per cent, of the Brooklyn Baltimore steck. Double ownership in baseball is not a good thing for the game, but when the time comes to wipe it out there should be the cleanest kind of a sweep. The magnates have never refused to accept the public's money and it is to be inferred that if the Brooklyn Baltimore syndicate could be controlled by the Freedman-Brush-Soden syndicate there would be no more talk about alliered exile. there would be no more talk about alleged evils

The situation in the League as far as the circuit is concerned is just this. If Hanion and Von der Horst receive fair treatment, with the sandbagging cut out, they will sell out. They have made Horst receive fair treatment, with the sandbagging cut out, they will sell out. They have made arrangements to transfer their players to other cities if such a contingency arises. In the contracts signed by McGraw and Robinson it is stipulated that if their releases are sold they will receive one-half of the purchase money. The Baltimore men say they are not obstructionists under certain conditions, and that their terms are not unfair. They are just as anxious to abolish syndicate ball as their opponents in the League providing the deal is made upon equitable lines. It is therefore up to the Circuit Committee to recommend fair play and also wipe out the syndicate in the New York club. It is said on the best of authority that when the time comes Freedman can have McGraw and Robinson for $15,000, of which they will receive half.

President N. E. Young has promulgated the following official bulletin: Contracts—With New York, Clarence Foster and tharles Gettig: with Chicago, E. E. Harvey, James onnor and William Phylic, with Boston, C. R. Pittin-er; with Toronto, W. Taylor, R. Schaub, H. Waller ed H. B. Remis and H. B. Bemis.

Baltimore, Feb. 28.—Capt. Joe Kelley has signed his Brooklyn contract. Joe has about abandoned hopes of managing the Washington team, for, though he is ambitious of emulating McGraw's success, he has no desire to take hold of a team of hopleless dubs. With the three men out of whom Wagner has recently disposed. Kelley realizes that his chance of making a "hit" as a manager is not great. Neither has Wagner given any intimation to Hanlon that he would like to purchase Kelley. It is much more likely that Wagner intends to get Donovan, who is something of a manager and captain and can be secured at a much lower rate.

MORE TROUBLE IN DETROIT.

President Johnson Says Vanderbeck Is Not a Member of the American League. DETROIT, Feb. 28.-Disgusted with Vanderbeck's Fabian policy. President Johnson of the American League announced to-day that Vanderbeck was no longer a member of the Board of Managers and could in the future have nothing to say in regard to the affairs of the League. He said Vanderbeck had had every opportunity to protect his interests from seizure and sale by the court to satisfy his wife's decree for alimony, but that further parley with him or alimony, but that further parley with him or further concessions were out of the question owing to the nearness of the opening of the baseball season.

He holds that the receiver's sale to Mrs. Vanderbeek, notwithstanding the order of the Supreme Court staying all proceedings, is final so far as the League is concerned and that she or assigns will be recognized by the League.

Acting upon this decision, which was made without consulting the other members of the League, President Johnson authorized Capt. Stallings to organize a team and get ready to begin the season. Stallings will at once sign an entire new team, having already mailed contracts to several players.

Vanderbeek laughs at Johnson's order to Stallings and says that if anybody controls the American League team for Detroit it will be himself.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 28 - It is rumored here today that the baseball circuit was to be reduced and that the League, the coming season, would be eight clubs, and that McGraw, who was signed by Hanlon yesterday to manage the Baltimore team at a salary of $6,000, and Robinson, who signed a $3,500 contract to captain the Orioles, were to be sold to the New York club the Orioles, were to be sold to the New York club for $15,000, and that McGraw and Robinson were to receive half the purchase money be-tween them and receive the same salary in New York that they signed for here. Those who youch for this information are men who are supposed to be in a position to know, but McGraw, when seen by The Nun correspond-ent to-night, said that there was no truth in it. "I positively deny it." said McGraw. "It is a "I positively deny it." said McGraw. "It is a ripe dream pure and simple. I know nothing whatever of any such agreement, and am sure if such arrangements have been made I would have been told. I still have something to say you know as to where I will play basebalt."

NEWS OF THE WHEELMEN. A Plan Suggested for Sending Amateur Riders to Paris.

One of the most interesting questions of the moment in evele racing circles is: "Who will represent America in the amateur championships at Paris this summer?" Under a special rule of the organizations in control of the sport, it is permissible for amateurs to have their expenses paid to an international meeting. The trouble is that, owing to the fight between the L. A. W. and N. C. A. last year. neither made a profit. The N. C. A., after its recognition by the I. C. A., has received the right to send a team abroad, but it is not likely to dig into its shallow treasury to do so, ir. spite of the fact that the time records of the best American amateurs indicate that they would get an excellent chance at Paris against all the world. It is known that there are enough of the amateur first-raters anxious to go to form a good team. Among these are George H. Collett of the Nassau Wheelmen, John H. Lake of the Harlem Wheelmen and George Schofield of the Kings County Wheelmen. It will be lamentable not to have such riders in the international championships. The only reasonable way out of the dilemma would seem to be for the N.C. A. to offer the American amateur championship contests to some track owner or promoter on condition that they be held in July, and that the first, second and third men have their expenses to Paris paid by the promoter. The championships are not decided by the points amassed at circuit meets held in different parts of the country throughout the summer, like the professional events, but are determined by the results of a series of races at one meeting. The international events at Paris are not to be run until August, and if the amateur championships were decided here early in July it would allow time enough for the unprofessional boys to be sent over and get a week of rest and training before the races. It might be advisable to give the amateur championships to Milwaukee with the national meet of the L. A. W. on the terms stated, but it is likely that on such conditions an Eastern city would be more liberal. At any rate the situation is one that requires a deal to be made in order that the amateur cracks of America may compete at Paris, because they are "too good" as riders to stay at home.

duced they have, because of their convenient size and lighting power, become popular with auto-mobilists and drivers, and the bicycle lamp is tomobilists and drivers, and the bicycle lamp is to-day being put to a great variety of uses. The queerest adaptation of the gas cycle lamp yet heard of is that of a Virginian. E. L. Harper, Jr., who uses one on his stirrup when riding through a rough country at night. The story of this odd idea comes from R. Will Pitman, to whom Harper appealed as a friend for information concerning gas lamps. Harper is the secretary of a wheeling club at Big Stone Gap and also the inspector for a quarrying company. His business requires him to make cross country trips where a bicycle is impossible, and much of his riding is done at night. After experimenting with several lamps on his wheel he adopted one with a top that is revolvable and permits the light to be thrown in on his wheel he adopted one with a top that is revolvable and permits the light to be thrown in ang direction. This he has fastened to his stirrup with an ordinary lamp bracket, and he says it is indispensable. The idea is one that might well be adopted by equestrians in sections that are not mountainous.

The weekly circular of the L. A. W. issued yesterday speaks pertinently as follows:
"Now that the League of American Wheelmen has abolished its racing department every attention will be given the other branches of its work. The most important of these is the highway improvement department, in which is intrusted the work in behalf of the good roads movement, which was started by the L. A. W., and which has been constantly agitated by it for almost twenty years. The most important work accomplished last year was the holding of many good roads conventions. was the holding of many good roads conventions in various States, the introduction of highway improvement measures in many of the State Legis latures, and the evolution of the movement to na latures, and the evolution of the movement to na-tional proportions, as was evidenced by the bill introduced in Congress calling for an appropriation of $5.000,000. Constitutional amendments were carried in Michigan and Minnesota, and a large amount of education on the subject was circulated by the League. All of his work will be continued during the present year, but upon a larger scale than heretofore.

Fitz May Become Matchmaker of the West chester A. C. Bob Fitzsimmons dropped a remark yesterday which goes to show that he may soon embark as a full-fledged matchmaker of an athletic club. While discussing the prospects of a battle with Tom Sharkey, which is to be arranged next Monday, Fitz declared to THE Sun reporter that he knew of a fine spot within easy access of this city where he could fight if he was barred from tackling Sharkey at all of the local clubs. When questioned closely and asked if he had in view the Westchester A. C., at Tuckhoo N. V. when McGatter and C. at Tuckhoo N. At Tuckhoo N. V. when McGatter and C. at Tuckhoo N. At Tu as Red if he had in view the westchester A. C., at Tuckahoe, N. Y., where McGovern defeated Pedlar Palmer last September, he said: "I don't know. It may be and it may not."

An intimate friend of the ex-champion said that Fitz has an offer to meet either Kid McCoy or Sharkey there and that he can have the job of matchmaker if he cares to accept it. When Tom O'Rourke was asked what he had to say anent the Cornishman's proposition that in selecting a referee lots should be drawn, he replied:
"Any suggestion which he may advance I

"Any suggestion which he may advance I will listen to when we meet on Monday. Just now I have nothing to say."

Frank Childs Wants to Fight Walcott. CHICAGO, Feb. 28.-Sam Summerfield, manager of Frank Childs, has posted a forfeit of $500 to bind an acceptance of the challenge issued by Tom O'Rourke yesterday on behalf of Joe Walcott, the colored welterweight, to any fighter in the world, bar Tom Sharkey. Manager Summerfield is confident that the colored heavyweight can defeat the chunky Barbadoes lighter, and he says he is willing to make a large side bet if O'Rourke will make the match. Childs has fully recovered from the attack of rheuratism that kept him out of the game for several months.

Jack O'Brien Challenges Terry McGovern Although Terry McGovern has steadfastly declared that he will not go out of his class challenges from ambitious lightweights still come pouring in. The latest pugilist to desire a crack at Terry is Jack O'Brien, the local a crack at Terry is Jack O'Brien, the local lightweight, who fought a draw a short time ago at Coney Island with Frank Erne. O'Brien is now at Hot Springs. In a letter to Jack Dougherty, his manager, he writes that he would like to tackle McGovern at 133 pounds' weigh-in at the ringside. O'Brien says that he will face the conqueror of George Dixon for either twenty or twenty-five rounds before any club which will donate the largest purse.

The Rowing Committee of the University of Pennsylvania has been forced for the first time in many years to appeal to the under graduates for funds in order to support the erew. Ever since old Penn assumed promicrew. Ever since old Penn assumed prominence in the football world the receipts from the games have been sufficient to supply the other branches of college sports which were not self-supporting with all the money required. But this year, owing to improvements of franklin Field and increased expenses in other directions, the crew is in need of funds and Chairman Reath of the Rowing Committee has asked Capt. Patterson of the Varsity crew to call a meeting of class presidents for a conference in regard to raising the required amount of money among the undergraduates,
